<Hakone Sekisyo>

Tokugawa shogun placed 53 sekisho (facility for inspection) on major roads across the nation to defend Edo (current Tokyo). Hakone Sekisho was one of the largest and was thought to be important among them.

One of the main roles of sekisho was to control 'incoming guns and outgoing women', which means to prevent weapons from being brought into Edo and wives and children of feudal lords from fleeing from Edo. However, Hakone Sekisho did not inspect 'incoming guns', and severely inspected 'outgoing women'.

Sekisho, which operated for about 260 years during Edo Era.

<Owaku-dani>

Owaku-dani is one of the most beautiful area as famous as the lake Ashi in Hakone. You will enjoy the view of Mt. Fuji with Hakone mountains and also the volcanic landscape created 400 thousand years ago. You can feel a part of telluric dynamisms in Japan.
